Own Razor,

Because He Wouldn't Let Her Go to the Circus and Whipped Her. About the hour of 5:30 o'clock Sunday morning the residents in the neighborhood of the corner of Cumberland and State were arroused by startling screams issuing from the up stairs apartments in the brick building on the northwest corner, occupied by Frank in his bed, with his throat cut almost from ear to ear, and weltering in his own gore, which was besmeared all over the bed, and standing in pools over the floor, presenting a most horrible and sickening appearance. It was also ascertained that the deed was committed by DeArmond's step-daughter, Fannie Igou, a girl about 17 or 18 years of age, who had concealed herself under the bed, but came out, with the razor-belonging to DeArmond, and with which she comping with blood. She left the room and went to her own room and got in bed again, and it was with some difficulty that she was gotten out of her room and arrested by officer Hicks, of the police force, who

H. the foot of Asylum street, and had his horses headed north, so as to drive out on Jackson street. The space between the oilhouse and the K. & A. Railroad track is very narrow, being only wide enough for one wagon. While in this narrow space a yard engine with two box cars came up the road. The horses suddenly became frightened and attempted to turn around, when the pole of the wagon caught in the engine, pulling the horses under the wheels of the engine, breaking the legs of one horse and lowed by an advance ranging from ‡ to 1½. badly cutting and bruising the other, besides breaking the pole off the wagon. The broken-legged horse was shot. This was perhaps the finest and most valuable span of make preferred, after which there was a perhaps the finest and most valuable span of horses in East Tennessee, used for transfer purposes. They were perfectly quiet 3 per cent. to 6. and gentle, and were never known to be frightened at moving trains or engines, hence the driver was not using the care he naturally would, had he been driving scary coin, $95,423,000; currency, $4,001,600; horses.
